JOB MARKET PAPER

More Competition, Better Products: Evidence from a Novel Classification of Patents

Abstract: This paper uses the text of patents and machine learning techniques to classify patents as product or process innovations. I combine this newly created data with plausibly exogenous variation in import penetration induced by large tariff cuts and find that firms increase their product innovation in response to increased import competition. In contrast, I find that import competition has no effect on process innovation. Heterogeneity analysis provides evidence that the effect on product innovation is stronger for firms operating in industries with wider scope for product differentiation.
